

Claims

1. Apparatus removably engageable with a golf bag for holding and carrying two or more selected golf clubs from said golf bag, said apparatus comprising:

two or more tubular members substantially shorter than said golf clubs joined together in parallel relationship, opened at each end and through which the shafts of said selected golf clubs may be inserted;

an elongated handle member having a proximal end attached near one end of said tubular members and extending in spaced parallel relationship therewith toward a free distal end which may be inserted into said golf bag for said removable engagement of said apparatus with said golf bag.

2. The apparatus of Claim 1 in which said handle member is provided near said proximal end thereof with a clip member which is engageable with a corresponding portion of said golf bag for said removable engagement therewith.

3. The apparatus of Claim 1 in which said tubular members and said handle member are formed as a single unit of uniform material.

4. The apparatus of Claim 1 in which there are three of said tubular members which, in cross-section, are arranged in triangular relationship, two forming a base and one the apex, said handle member being attached to said tubular member forming the apex so that said apparatus, with said selected golf clubs inserted into said tubular members, may be carried by said handle and laid on the ground so that said two tubular members which form said base support said apparatus on the ground.

5. The apparatus of Claim 4 in which said handle member is telescopically extendable from a retracted position of a length substantially the same as said tubular members to an extended position of a length substantially the same as said golf club shafts allowing said apparatus and said selected golf clubs carried thereby to be supported by said handle and the ends of said golf clubs in a vertical disposition.

6. The apparatus of Claim 4 in which said tubular members are joined by a interconnecting web forming elongated recesses therebetween, at least one of said recesses being provided with one or more holders in which one or more golf balls may be removably carried.